Premium, Direct Print, and Infused Products What's The Difference?

Premium products start as a high-quality paper print that is printed on our state of the art 12 color giclée printers. Using Canon LUCIA EX pigment inks at 1,200 dots per inch with 4 picolitre drop size, premium prints yield unmatched photographic quality with 2400x1200 resolution. When these inks have a UV protection over them they have been Wilhelm rated at over 115 years. Paper prints are encapsulated and mounted on an acid free coated substrate and coated with a water-resistant and UV protective surface finish of your choice. A variety of paper options are available (see page 9) and are priced separately from the listed product price; premium products also allow the use of a customer-provided print. The most discerning artists use our premium line with multiple options for surface finishes and paper print types to create a fully customized look.

Direct Print is just like the name says; these products are built similarly to our premium line except they use a different, direct print printing process. High-tech, direct application UV printing allows for unlimited printing capabilities to a variety of different surfaces. Each product starts with a high quality substrate, like our premium line, then has UV-ink printed directly to the surface of the material instead of paper. UV ink has high permanence ratings and can be considered weather-resistant so there is no surface finish required for UV protection or water-resistance for direct print products, these qualities are innate to the ink. Because there is no paper, slight imperfections of the material may show through the print. Direct printing is ideal for commercial work and signage.

Infused products are quickly becoming some of the most popular on the market. Using a superior quality printing process at 1440x1440 resolution, images are printed to a transfer paper then infused into a material through a dye sublimation process. With a combination of pressure and heat, the ink on the transfer paper is morphed into a gas that is infused into the material. The result is a clear, durable photo quality image that is completely water proof for interior or exterior use. Similar to direct print products, there is no paper print in the final product, so some material imperfections may show on the finished product. Wilhelm Imaging Research (WIR), the standard in testing, has ranked DuraPlaq's infused metal products with a print permanence rating three times higher than archival silver-halide papers (by Kodak and Fuji). With amazing photo quality and durability, the high gloss infused print give the effect as if you are viewing your print through a window making your image come to life for a lifetime. An unmatched combination of display permanence, surface durability, and color brilliance, it's no wonder why these products are so popular!

* Due to the nature of printing to materials with varying base colors, textures and finishes, there may be variations in the surface and appearance of an infused or direct print product. DuraPlaq does not offer replacements on surface or color variations with products including direct prints or infused prints. Product proofs are highly recommended to assure accurate print expectations.

 Premium satin will match prior satin finish from 2020 and earlier and will incur a 20% product premium surcharge due to higher likelihood of defective material. Not allowable for provided prints.

Prepping Your Files For Printing?

For the best resolution and end product, please submit image files in 8 or 16 bit format with Adobe 98 in tiff, jpeg, psd, or psb format. Our printing processes maintain 1,200 dpi, however to maintain optimum print quality, files should maintain 300 dpi minimum at the desired print size. See page two product comparison for more information on print quality and resolution. Please make sure you note any required image file sizes for preset size products.

Custom Size, Custom Price?

DuraPlaq believes in offering customization as a standard! Unless it's a preset sized product, there's no need to compromise or crop your image! All of our products are custom created to the size you want (rounded to the nearest 1/8"). To determine a DuraPlaq price, calculate the overall square inch size of the piece (length in inches x width in inches = square inch) and determine the corresponding product cost and the corresponding print cost if applicable. To calculate the product cost, locate the corresponding square inch size in the plaq size column on the left of the pricing page and follow the line horizontally to the product column to the price. If the square inch size is not specifically noted, round up to the nearest listed square inch size. If a print is not included or you have not provided one, a print cost will also be assessed. The print cost is calculated by taking the square inch size of the print times the print rate as shown on page 8 for each print type (square inch size x print rate = cost).

What Else Should you Know?

The manufacturing process can take up to 1/4" off each side of artwork for most DuraPlaq™ products. Please note that signatures or crucial image composition should be minimum 1/4" away from edge of artwork to assure they will be maintained in manufacturing process. Borders on images may become skewed given the human craftsmanship involved in creating our plaq products. Attention to detail is important however we do not recommend borders smaller than 1" as they can exaggerate small skewing in the print application. Please check out the DuraPlaq terms and conditions before ordering for more information regarding image resolution, customization, applicable fees and more.
